Americans Launch Greatest Air Assault in History

Drop 5,000 Tons Of Explosives On Nazi Targets

Force Luftwaffe To Give Battle

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

LONDON, July 19 (AP)—Climaxing thirty-six hours of the most terrible air assault in history, American fleets totaling 3,000 planes converged on Germany today from Britain and Italy and brought the attack to a crushing crescendo at Munich, shrine of Nazism, where they concentrated their assault on chemical and aircraft factories.

The American planes dropped 5,000 tons of explosives on numerous targets in the Reich in this second straight day of co-ordinated blows against Germany by the United States Eighth and Fifteenth Air Forces, and brought to about 19,000 tons the total bomb weight loosed against the continent since dawn Tuesday—more than half of it on the German homeland.

Great Air Fleet Attacks

Some 1,700 Liberators and Fortresses roared from the north and south against Germany, accompanied by about 1,300 fighters. They slammed explosives on plane plants, fields, a ballbearing factory, railroads, ordnance depots and chemical works all the way from Saarbrücken to Schweinfurt in Southern Germany. Weather over these targets was clear, and the attack was visual.

Of the British-based force, eighteen bombers and seven fighters were reported missing. The victories and losses of the force from Italy were still to be announced.

Luftwaffe Hard Hit

The terrific pace set by the Allies in the air during the last thirty-six hours—operations involving more than 12,000 sorties by planes based in Britain, Normandy and Italy—forced the reluctant Luftwaffe to come up and fight in several sectors at a painful price to Hitler's dwindling fighter strength.

Since the non-stop battering of the continent began on the present massive scale at 5:45 a. m., Tuesday, with tremendous bomb blows supporting the new Caen drive, Allied airmen have downed 145 German planes and destroyed an additional forty-seven on the ground with Wednesday's score by the Mediterranean force yet to be tabulated.

The United States Eighth Air Force bombers and fighters bagged 44 in the air and twenty-six on the ground in the two days while the Fifteenth air force accounted for sixty-six in Tuesday's attacks on the Reich. Tactical air units destroyed the remaining forty-six—of which thirty-five were in the air—during missions to support the battlefront in France.

133 Allied Planes Lost

Allied losses during the twenty-six-hour period were 133 planes, about half of which were heavy bombers. This figure includes Mediterranean losses Tuesday, but not Wednesday.

Flying bomb installations in Northern France received another heavy daylight attack by RAF Lancasters, which struck even as the robot raiders croned over London and Southern England in increased strength.

Doctor Prescribes By Telephone

BALTIMORE, July 19 (AP)—Diagnoses and prescriptions by telephone plus self-treatment by patients has helped ease the increased wartime load of at least one Southern Maryland physician.

Dr. Charles W. Maxson, state chairman of the medical procurement and assignment section of the War Manpower commission, told of this remote control procedure to-night in an address before the Baltimore County Medical Association when he predicted that increasing calls of physicians into military service might result in other new and unorthodox practices by civilian doctors.

Judge Refuses To Accept Cash Settlements for OPA Violations

PHILADELPHIA, July 18 (AP)—Refusing to permit two Lancaster county (Pa.) slaughtermen to settle price violation charges by cash payments, Federal Judge J. Cullen Kane referred the cases to the United States attorney's office today and said he would be "looking for indictments."

Judge Kane said from the bench he could not "with good conscience send small butchers to jail for selling one pound of meat at more than the ceiling price, as the OPA has asked, and at the same time sign consent decrees against men who have sold thousands or hundreds of thousands of pounds of meat over the ceiling."

Joseph Kunkel, who presented the consent decrees for the Harrisburg OPA, said the Harrisburg office never has recommended criminal prosecution in over-ceiling meat sales.

Kerr Sounds Keynote:

Hails Party of Roosevelt, Flays Republicans and Governor Dewey

By PAUL MILLER

CHICAGO STADIUM, July 19 (AP)—Gov. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma hailed the party of Franklin Roosevelt tonight as the party of achievement and power, and stormily assailed the Republicans and their youthful standard-bearer Thomas E. Dewey as untried and untested, broken by disunity, having "no program except to oppose."

Keynoting the Democratic national convention before cheering thousands of delegates, Kerr said:

"Our aim is complete and speedy victory. Our goal is a just and abiding peace. Our promise to a world of peace is responsibility and co-operation."

"Our pledge to America at peace is a government responsible to the needs and hopes of every citizen, even the humblest; a government which will not shrink or fail, but will fulfill with gratitude and fidelity, our sacred obligation to our returning service men and women."

The towering Oklahoma defended Roosevelt administration leaders against 42-year-old Governor Dewey's charge that they are "tired, quarrelsome, old men." He asserted the Republicans are "incapable either of learning anything or of forgetting anything." He accused G. O. P. leaders "after World War I" of having "sabotaged every effective vehicle for keeping peace" and of major opposition to preparation for World War Two.

Assails Herbert Hoover

Cried Kerr, as Kleig lights burned off the lofty distances of darkened balconies upon the bunting-festooned speakers' stand:

"In this hall last month the Republicans nominated as their candidate for president the man selected for them four years ago by Herbert Hoover, As America looked on she saw the mantle of Herbert Hoover, not falling upon but being placed upon the shoulders of his cherished disciple, Thomas E. Dewey. What she did not see, but what will become more and more apparent, is that the mantle has become the shroud."

The G. O. P. convention, Kerr asserted, "snubbed and sidetracked Wendell Willkie," and thus "the last vestige of liberal leadership of the Republican party was buried under (Continued on Page 8, Col. 3)

Moody Speaks for Texas

This development came after the Texas delegation, which has conditioned the support of its electors on the convention taking certain action on "state rights," delegated Moody to present Texas's case to the platform committee.

The twenty-eight member subcommittee subsequently designated twelve of its members to begin drafting the platform in executive session. In addition to Moody and Darden, three other names were added to the original twenty-three member subcommittee.

Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada was added when a point was raised that the silver states were not represented. Others added were Dan Tobin, head of the teamsters' union, and Mrs. Elizabeth Pellet of Colorado.

More Recognition Granted

It was understood that the South got more subcommittee members when Oscar Johnston, platform committeeman from Mississippi, raised the question that Dixie was not fully represented. Already on the subcommittee from the South were Senator Claude Pepper of Florida; Josephus Daniels, North Carolina publisher; Mrs. W. T. Boet of North Carolina and Mrs. Albert E. Hill of Tennessee.

As the twelve-member group went into seclusion to begin putting into black and white the actual plans for the platform it faced the job of piecing the Southern Democrats, negro organizations and the CIO on the race issue.

319 Men Known Dead In Ship Explosion

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19 (AP)—The navy announced today at least 319 men were known dead or missing in Monday night's terrific explosion of two ammunition ships at Port Chicago, on San Francisco bay thirty-five miles from here.

The nation's worst wartime blast, caused the loss of 303 enlisted men, thirty-one or thirty-two members of the naval armed guard, nine naval officers, five coast guardsmen, and about seventy civilian crew members of the two vessels.

In addition, three civilian deaths have been reported.

A total of 240 naval personnel were injured, none seriously, the announcement said.

A navy estimate placed property damage at $2,000,000, aside from the $4,300,000 value of the two ships.

Tokyo Announces

Resignation of Entire Cabinet

By The Associated Press

The Japanese government headed by Gen. Hideki Tojo, which led that nation into war against the United States less than two months after the cabinet's formation in October, 1941, has resigned collectively as Japan continued drastic overhauling of her political and military commands in the face of mounting disaster, Tokyo announced last night.

Tojo, hitherto considered the supreme war lord, tendered his resignation to Emperor Hirohito along with those of his lesser colleagues and, for the time being at least, was without high office.

It remained to be seen whether he would be appointed to form another government.

A statement by the Japanese board of information, broadcast by the Domei news agency and reported by the Federal Communications commission, said nothing about the make-up of the new government but asserted, "we anticipate with great anxiety the appearance of a new, strong cabinet at this time."

Referring to the "present grave situation," the wireless dispatch directed to Japanese-occupied areas, stated "the government finally has decided to renovate its personnel totally in order to prosecute the war to victory."

The announcement followed one day after Tojo had been relieved of his post as chief of the army general staff and disclosed that the cabinet resignations also were presented to Hirohito on Tuesday. No reason was given for the delay in making the change public.

Hitler Changes Commanders

Instead of the military man Hitler turned over to the Gestapo the last German-occupied area not previously governed by Quisling or commissar, by naming Josef Grohe, 42, a high elite guard officer, "reich commissioner of the occupied territories of Belgium and Northern France." The German Wehrmacht also named an infantry commander, one General Grase, military commander in Holland and Belgium, the area where the Nazis have predicted new Allied landings.

(No further identification was given in the German report of Gen. Grase, but OWI lists a Lt. Gen. Martin Grase, 54, as a commander of the First German Infantry division.)

Moscow newspapers quoted captive Gen. Edmund Hofmeister, who commanded the Forty-first tank corps, as saying the disagreement in the ranks of Hitler's generals and Hitler's orders were causing a great toll in Germany dead and prisoners on the Eastern front.

The general was quoted as saying Field Marshal Gen. Ernest von Busch, commander of the Central Russian front where the Russians have made their most spectacular gains, told him "Hitler forbade any retreat, and he ordered every inch of occupied country defended."

"Although I considered the order wrong," Hofmeister was quoted, "I had to obey. I want to say that the defeat in White Russia is an example of the talentless command of Hitler. When Brauchitsch, List, von Rundstedt, all marshals and others tried to point out error, they were discharged."

Hofmeister was quoted as saying that young Nazi generals "who have had but little experience in war" side with Hitler against the older commanders, and he mentioned Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in this group. Rommel was considered at least partly responsible for the discharge of von Rundstedt as commander of the west in favor of Field Marshal Gen. Guenther von Kluge.

An angry clamor broke out in the Wallace camp. It demanded to know what was going on, whether Hannegan had some new word from the chief executive, and, if he did, that it be made public property.

The squabbling wasn't limited to the vice-presidential situation either. Platform drafters were finding it tough to write a satisfactory plank on the racial issue. And Tennessee's delegation, touchy on the subject like the rest of the South, reported it had voted to rescind endorsements of the president himself, pending disclosure of the plank.

In the vice-presidential scramble War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes long since had been thumbed out of the race by the president. Party leaders tried to deal Wallace out, too.

But the vice president firmly declared: "I am in this fight to the finish." And he rushed away from the convention's night session to repeat the avowal in a statement prepared for a broadcast and to add that "the delegates themselves will determine the future action of this convention."

30,000 Workers Needed in Shipyards

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Ralph A. Bard, undersecretary of the navy, reported today a shortage of 30,000 workers in navy shipyards and production plants, "principally on the Pacific coast."

He gave the figure in a statement, addressed to production workers in all navy establishments in which he said that the navy's production program "is still increasing."

Neither the administration of selective service nor the question of compulsory military training, which he long has advocated, were discussed with Dewey, Wadsworth said.

Wadsworth, co-author of the selective service act, was a guest of the Republican presidential nominee at a conference which he said dealt mainly with postwar national security.

"We discussed generally having this country strong and kept strong in a military sense after the war," Wadsworth told reporters. "We discussed it by contrast with 1920 and 1922, when we entered into a disarmament agreement, sank one third of our navy, reduced our army, promised Japan that we would not fortify the Philippines, and made ourselves pretty nearly helpless to our great distress later on."

"Governor Dewey and I are in agreement that sort of thing should not happen again."

With Wadsworth's departure, Dewey turned to a routine of state work. Aides said he did not listen to broadcasts of the Democratic national convention.

6 Nazi Officers Slain in Fight Over Policies

Military Leaders Split with Hitler

By RICHARD R. KASISCHKE

LONDON, July 19 (AP)—The death of six German officers in a fight over strategy and complaints of a Nazi general, deplored discord among Hitler and his military leaders were announced by Allied quarters today and from Berlin came word of a shakeup in the Low countries.

The Nazi high command apparently had become entangled in bitter disaffection while fighting its three-front war.

Officers Draw Pistols

The Greek government-in-exile announced in Cairo that high German officers who met at the Hotel Brenthagen in Athens for a conference disagreed violently over policy, drew pistols and began shooting. Five were said to have been killed in the melee, and the sixth, chief administrative officer for the Peloponnese, was reported shot to death by an SS guard while fleeing.

Another Cairo report said the Athens provost marshal, one Col. Fritze, an Austrian, was executed for speaking against the German command.

The German news agency DNE said in a broadcast Hitler himself decreed the discharge of Col. Gen. Alexander von Falkenhausen, friend of the deposed western commander, Field Marshal Gen. Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt, as commander in Holland and Belgium.

Seven Soviet Armies Attack:

German-Russian '41 Line Crossed By Reds in Drive To Take Berlin

By W. W. HERCHER

LONDON, July 19 (AP)—Russian troops smashed across the 1941 German-Russian Bug river frontier in Old Poland today in a drive straight at the heart of Germany, and in a newly opened two-day offensive along the North Latvian border have hurled back the enemy twenty-five miles on a 43-mile front, Moscow announced tonight.

The Bug river, from which the Germans attacked Russia June 22, 1941, was crossed by Marshal Ivan S. Konev's first Ukrainian army north and south of Sokol, above the imperiled German stronghold of Lwow, a communiqué recorded by the Soviet minister said.

Seven powerful Russian armies now were hitting the reeling Germans on a 700-mile front in the greatest combined attack ever launched in the east.

German radio broadcasts acknowledged the crossing of the Bug, and said the Germans supported by heavy tank formations were striking back fiercely in an effort to keep the Russian horde off the Polish plains leading to German Silesia, 245 miles west of Sokol.

Sokol, forty-five miles north of Lwow, was captured in the crush in which Soviet airplanes held undisputed mastery, Moscow said. Lwow, one of the greatest rail hubs in Europe, also was imperilled by Soviet spearheads which overran Remenov, only eight and one-half miles northeast of that stronghold.

Approach Brest Litovsk

To the north other Russian armies were fighting just a few miles outside of Brest Litovsk, 110 miles east of Warsaw, after cutting the railway leading north to Bialystok at Kleschell.

Kleschell, a junction of the Brest Litovsk-Bialystok and Warsaw-Baranovich lines, was captured. A total of more than 1,237 towns and villages were captured by the seven Russian armies, 700 of them by the Third Baltic front armies going over to the attack south of the Baltic.

Radio Helps Distressed Fliers Forced Down Off the Marianas

(Editor's note: This is the second of two stories on ship-plane teamwork that helped United States airmen return home after wrecking a Japanese carrier task force in the June 18-19 battle of the Marianas islands.)

By ELMONT WAITE
ABOARD CARRIER FLAGSHIP OFF MARIANAS ISLANDS, July 19 (AP)—Matter of fact farewells poured over the ship-to-plane radio from victorious pilots just before they panicked into the sea, one after the other, all out of gas.

They were returning from a rout of the Japanese task force that cost the enemy two of its finest carriers. Many couldn't quite get back.
"I couldn't stand to listen any longer that night," said Lt. James A. Seybert, 26-year-old veteran who has fought from Scotland, Malta and the Pacific. "I finally just shut my radio off."
What bothered him were scraps of conversation like this:
"None of us have enough (gasoline) left to get back to our base and it's foolish to straggle along going down one by one. We'd better all land together right here."
"Right here" was a dark section of the heaving ocean. Yet the bomber pilots who were talking so calmly realized their chances of rescue were much greater if they remained together. So down they went, in formation.
And everywhere were the calm voices of mother ships—reassuring, instructing, advising. So that in the end, spectacular rescue searches cut the list of missing airmen from about 110 to forty-eight.

Seybert, whose home is at Okinawa, Ia., made a beautiful night landing. When he climbed from his Hellcat fighter, he recalled, "some guy right up there on the flight deck greeted me like a long-lost brother. I kind of wondered about this."

"Then I got down to our ready room, looking around for my wingman. All the guys there were

Chicago Convention a Gathering of Robots

WHAT we are now witnessing at Chicago is a convention of robots. The delegates to the Democratic national convention will respond, in the end, to the program set down in advance by Mr. Roosevelt and whatever divergence there is from that will be done in accordance to Mr. Roosevelt's wishes. The speakers merely recite lines prepared for them and some forget their words, the crowd will be given. The delegates will arrive at their make-believe decisions written by an author who is not there.

Mr. Roosevelt accepted the nomination for a fourth term in advance of the convention. There was no body else to whom the delegates could turn if they had a chance to turn as Mr. Roosevelt has killed off every possible presidential candidate during the last ten years.

The platform was also prepared in advance by Mr. Roosevelt. There will, of course, be some last minute revision as prompted by the situation, but this will consist chiefly of filling in the blanks. The platform in the main will be Mr. Roosevelt's. But, the Democratic national platform this year will be unimportant. The actual basis of the Democratic campaign this year will be Mr. Roosevelt's record. Promises will not mean anything. Many of them haven't meant anything in the party platform of the last dozen years.

Whoever is selected for the vice presidency will be, if not Mr. Wallace, some one having the approval of Mr. Roosevelt. The selection will not be made until Mr. Roosevelt gives the nod. The idea that the convention will be free to make a selection here as well as elsewhere is but mere twaddle.

Equally fatuous is the declaration Mr. Roosevelt made that he was accepting the nomination at the instance of the sovereign people of the United States in the capacity of their commander-in-chief. Thus the people of the United States—the "sovereign people"—have shrunk, for the occasion, to the Democratic party. That endeavor to bring the nomination under the patronage of the whole people is an insult to the millions who do not favor the man's personal ambition.

But, this is the outcome of a dynastical situation—the resolving of a once great political party into a one-man institution. Roosevelt is the undisputed boss of the party, which performance must proceed under the aegis of the New Deal and the gathering at Chicago is but a trap in the popular government, a gathering, in fact, of robots.

Welles Furthers the Free News Movement

SUMNER WELLES, former secretary of state, has written a book, "The Time for Decision," which came off the publisher's presses this week, in which, it is gratifying to note, he has taken up the cudgel in behalf of free exchange of news among all the peoples of the earth. This, he declares, is one of the essentials for maintaining world peace and he is dead right as to that.

Welles takes up this theme many times in the work. At one point he tells of his arrival in Germany in 1940 on a special mission for President Roosevelt and his discovery of the extent to which the German press was controlled.

I remember that on the first page of the very first paper I picked up," Welles writes, "were three items, written with ponderous solemnity, which purported to describe events alleged to have taken place in England and in the United States. All of them were not only untrue, but fantastically untrue."

Welles says this gave him a new concept of the "tremendous power" which complete control of the sources of information gives to a government.

"Under those conditions," he writes, "and at a time when listening to a foreign radio broadcast was a capital offense, punishment for which was reported in the very newspaper I was then reading, how was it conceivable that the people of Germany could ever move except as their masters instructed them?"

"From that moment, I have been convinced that when this war is over, the peoples of the earth must never again permit themselves to arise where any people shall be deprived of their inherent right to know the truth."

Nor must they if they ever hope to establish and maintain a lasting peace.

Fiorella Should Reconsider This

FATE again overtook the radio listeners of New York city when Mayor La Guardia, who dashes to a microphone at the slightest provocation, turned down the offer of a job as mayor of San Paulo, Brazil. He was asked if he wanted the post by all people. Francisco de Assisi Chateaubriand, Brazilian publisher and radio executive.

Why a radio executive would want Mayor La Guardia in Brazil where his ideas would be broadcast all over South America is a mystery. There must be a current shortage of conversation in the Latin American states and self-censorship. The mayor turned down the offer despite the fact he was told the job would be easier than his present one.

The mayor ought to reconsider. San Paulo has been described as "the fastest growing city in the world." Located in the heart of Brazil's richest agricultural state, it is rapidly becoming the largest city in South America, with Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires not far ahead.

In twenty years San Paulo went from a city of 579,000 persons to a city of 1,600,000 inhabitants. Eight thousand new buildings were erected last year, and it is estimated that one new building was completed every hour for the last two years. New industries of all sorts are flocking to the city.

If Mayor La Guardia took the job, he would find rest from his task of proving to his public that New York city is not on the economic skids. He no longer would need to gloat over the comparatively few new industries which establish themselves in the metropolis from time to time.

What's the use of praising an old suit of clothes when one is offered an entirely new and well-tailored outfit?

Shoe Shortage Is To Last Some Time

MEMBERS of the Combined Raw Material Board, an agency which allocates essential raw materials among the United States, Britain and Canada, predict that it will be two years after the defeat of Germany before the rationing of leather shoes can be lifted. The War Production Board concurs in this view. This prediction is based on the fact that world hide stocks are at an all-time low and on the prospect that the United States may be called upon to send hides and shoes to Europe for many months.

Military need for shoes this year will reach 55,000,000 pairs, of which 15,000,000 pairs will be used for relief distribution in Europe. Lend-lease commitments call for substantial shipments of shoes to Britain and Russia. The United States relief agency could use 25,000,000 pairs for additional relief distribution.

Civilians in the United States, under rationing, get approximately 300,000,000 pairs of shoes a year. These combined demands total more shoes than the United States could produce if it had the leather, and the nation does not have the leather.

The final solution may be substitute materials for relief shoes, with Europeans getting ersatz tops and wooden soles.

Motorists Kill Too Much Game

IT really doesn't seem possible in view of the lessened use of motor cars in the country, but a large number of game animals are being killed on the highways of the state. Richard T. Norris, chief deputy state game warden, says it is a fact, however, and reports that at least 4,970 game animals were thus destroyed so far this year.

The figure represents only the game reported by the state game wardens as seen killed on the highways and does not take into account that which is removed for food and other uses by those killing. Norris estimates the actual kill at several times the number registered. That number represented 12,000 pounds of good food.

Well, what can be done about it? The chief cause of this wild life mortality, according to Norris, are too bright headlights and too fast driving. He suggests that motorists exert every caution to prevent this needless exhaustion of the natural game supply. As for the factor of fast driving, it would appear that a good many motorists are forgetting the lowered speed limit set up under wartime regulations.

Even Onkle Choe Goebbels should have a tough time trying to explain to the East Prussians how come the Red Army, which was "annihilated" happened to come to life again right on their borders.

Gardeners are urged to scatter sneeze powder to discourage rabbits. It might chase the bunnies away but what if it comes up goldenrod?

The average man has a vocabulary of 12,000 words. But he can always think up a few new ones when he trips over a toy in the dark.

The "hot-cross bun" comes from the Greeks and Romans, who ate bread marked with a cross at public sacrifices.

Japs are making butter out of whale oil. This should start a fad in Tokyo for eating the bread dry.

Back to the City

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I went for a vacation and for the first half of it I read no newspapers. I could have read them although I was in a far, far place where there were no thieves, no traffic problems, no telephones, no radios, no electric lights, no war. But I read no newspapers. Not because I wanted to get away from them—they are my job, a part of my bloodstream and of the breath I draw—but because I thought I'd have a better life for a little while if I selfishly took myself away from the harsh existence of 1944.

So there were no newspapers. . . . But chipmunks darted over rocks and came boldly-timidly to take food from my hands. And streams murmured on the hillside and the wind rushed through the pines and the water in the lake was bracingly cold and the granite hills were strong and comforting and the sunset on the mountain was splendid and a man had a good appetite and if he laid a tool down by a tree and came back two days later he'd find it still there, untouched. . . . It was a fair safe life with no echoes in it anywhere of the city streets and the mad jungle and the harsh battlefields of another life.

So for a little while I read no newspapers and was proud of my freedom.

Freedom, did I write? But that was no freedom. That was but a recess, a space for breathing, for strengthening. It was in a way, a retreat from life. . . . And so I went back to newspapers. Went back to streetcars and trains, and rationing and shortages, to elections, to murders and suicides and telegrams and income taxes and automobile collisions, and radio programs and crowds and the war and all the fierce feverish, anxious passions and the pathetic, excited pageant that is reported on the front pages.

Did I go like the galley slave? Did I come down from the hills, and self-censoring as though the life of the city were too much for mortal to bear?

No. I did not. I came gladly, as a child comes home. I came as I think nearly all city men return to their towns, eager to be a part of that life again, glad to share its struggle and pain and perplexity and triumphs and setbacks. The hills where they vacationed, joyously looking back on those precious days, but deeply content to be a part of the life that is bled forth in the newspapers. . . . Back at work again and glad of it.

RIDE HIM, COWBOY!

Roosevelt Is Reported in a Dilemma as To Choice between Wallace and Byrnes

By DAVID LAWRENCE

CHICAGO, July 19—It was not that President Roosevelt liked Henry Wallace less than he liked Jimmy Byrnes more. This is the simple explanation of the vice presidential nomination. Almost everybody here is agreed that Mr. Wallace was eliminated the moment Mr. Roosevelt indicated that he wouldn't insist and that the choice was wide open.

Four years ago Mr. Roosevelt did insist on the nomination of Mr. Wallace. If anything, the latter is more experienced today after four years than he was in 1940 and there's a certain worth to the experience argument this time, as Mr. Roosevelt doubtless would agree.

Why then was Mr. Wallace not given a 100 per cent endorsement? The answer would seem to be found in the peculiar way Mr. Roosevelt gets his personal friendships and political obligations all tangled up. It may have been gotten recently but James P. Byrnes, of South Carolina, has served the Roosevelt administration well in the Senate and has served a long period in the House and finally was given by the president a place on the Supreme Court of the United States—a lifetime post and beyond doubt a coveted post for any lawyer.

Unusual Course

Then Mr. Byrnes left the bench. He didn't do so because he wanted to resign. He did so as a wartime duty at the urging of Mr. Roosevelt who needed some one to handle relations with Congress, while he devoted himself to war problems. It isn't often that a justice steps down from the Supreme Court of the United States when he has been there only a few months. What's more, it isn't often that he takes a post in the executive branch of the government which wasn't even rated by Congress.

When former Justice Byrnes became director of war mobilization, he sacrificed his place on the bench to serve the president, who asked him to do it. What was ahead for Jimmy Byrnes? Clearly Mr. Roosevelt couldn't promise anything. But last week he certainly didn't feel he had a right to foreclose Jimmy Byrnes's chance to win the vice-presidential nomination by coming out unequivocally for Wallace.

So as convention time approached, Mr. Roosevelt stood between two friends. His letter endorses Mr. Wallace, but it says in effect that somebody else would be acceptable, too. That's enough for the politicians.

No Legislative Experience

After all, Mr. Wallace didn't come up the political ranks. He never ran for the Senate or for the House of Representatives or for the governorship of his state. Alongside of him, Jimmy Byrnes stands out as the experienced legislator and the man who has been called "assistant president" because he has been at the right hand of Mr. Roosevelt through the trying months of the war. Also, former Senator Byrnes as presiding officer of the Senate, if elected vice president, would be a help in handling administration policies. He knows the rest.

Deadlock Possibility

Unless the president says the word, Byrnes may be unable to make the grade. For the C.I.O. and Communist leaders who together say they control a sizeable body of voters in the Democratic party, aren't interested in Byrnes. They would punish him for his record in holding to the "Little Steel" formula of wage freezing. They might agree to Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, who, on the other hand, may or may not have the president's blessing. Yet, until Mr. Roosevelt says or hints that he will accept Barkley, the strategists who are opposed to the Kentucky senator will claim that the president don't want him.

Deadlock Possibility

Then there is Senator Truman, of Missouri, who says he doesn't want the nomination. His friends, however think he may be the beneficiary of a fall line of the southerners in the convention to agree on either Barkley or Byrnes, thus producing a deadlock.

In the background is Justice Douglas but he, like Wallace, had no political following or experience and this convention would rather take Wallace than Douglas.

Maybe in the end Wallace will emerge on the first ballot as the only man with any cohesive strength behind him. Conventions don't like to be told who to nominate for president but, once they have chosen the top of the ticket, they are inclined to ask for a hint on the vice-presidential nomination.

Mr. Roosevelt from somewhere at the end of a telephone may have to reveal his future wishes before a selection is made.

CHICAGO KEYNOTER

HERE IS a fighting face pose of Governor Robert S. Kerr, of Oklahoma, as he prepared to assume his post as temporary chairman of the Democratic national convention in Chicago. He also delivered the keynote address at the Democratic conclave.

Viewed as Conciliator

The common thought among others, however, was that Byrnes could conciliate the rampant South (his first inside job here for the White House was to work on Texas) and might induce many a hesitant business man to support Roosevelt.

Certainly such a step would moderate the radical course on the party, and why not, as the radicals (Hillman, CIO, Communists et al) had no place else to go with their bulging political bankroll.

The amazing extent of party disrespect for Mr. Wallace encouraged this movement. Even his best friends, the radicals, began early to talk up their second choice, Supreme Court Justice Douglas.

I understand that what killed Wallace was National Chairman Hannegan's recent trip around the country. Hannegan reported to the president what is obvious here, namely, that few party men think Wallace could run the country successfully, if Mr. Roosevelt's health fails.

But the CIO's seem to have no more than eight state delegations in this convention, the other forty being predominantly Democratic partisans.

So restricted was their direct influence, they depended on a retired minor federal official and a consumers co-operative promoter as their lobby floorwalkers.

Plenty of Dough

They are supposed to have from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000 ready to spend in this campaign and the Democratic committee will only be even, without an extra red cent when this convention is over.

Yet CIO convention headquarters was placed by the national committee some blocks away from the two leading convention hotels, and every other sign pointed to the intent of the politicians to de-emphasize this phase of their support.

Their opposition to Byrnes's recent acts ran no deeper than his assertion to Congress that he had not read their Kilgore Industrial Demobilization bill, at the time he endorsed other postwar legislation, and the fact that he opposed the wage increase to the railroad brotherhoods.

What was used against him in the gossiping, however, was the fact that he was raised in some other faith after having been born a Catholic (although Crowley and Kelly, his leading advocates, are both Catholics.)

Behind Byrnes and Wallace stood the Kentuckian, Barkley, a somewhat lonely figure. No one seemed to be for him particularly, including himself. He was just pleasantly standing around, waiting in the possibility that he would be noticed as a candidate.

Acceptable Record

That possibility was assured if the Byrnes versus Wallace-Douglas forces were unable to nominate. Barkley's CIO record is acceptable (the radicals campaigned for him against Senator Chandler in his last election) and he is acceptable to negroes, as he voted for repeal of the poll tax. He likewise voted for the brotherhoods' wage increase which Byrnes opposed.

The others were just lightning-rod candidates with shorter rods, including National Chairman Hannegan's candidate Truman.

The chairman is supposed to be neutral on candidates and his endorsement of Truman filled that requirement amply. The chief reason for the candidacy apparently being that Hannegan wants to carry his own native Missouri—or at least get some publicity for it.

The convention insiders understood that if Byrnes straightened out the Texas delegation electoral situation, he might get a silent nod from the White House, or at least bring forth the overwhelming support of the cabinet.

The only chance of the radicals for one of their men passed with Mr. Roosevelt's declaration of leadership in the matter. A compromise was the best they could hope for.

The Democratic party has become more conservative—here, at least.

Dodge of World League Issue Is Seen at Chicago

By MARK SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, July 19—Some Democratic leaders arrived in Chicago with a special idea about the platform plank having to do with post war international organization.

Their idea was based partly on a principle which they zealously hold; partly it had a political motive. The principle they hold is that the United States should take immediate, concrete and strong action looking to such a post war organization.

Holding this belief, these Democratic leaders wished the convention to adopt a platform plank expressing this idea. They believed in this idea for its own sake and also because they felt it would be a contrast to the Republican plank on the same subject. In short, they felt it was desirable that the post war international organization should be an issue in the campaign.

At this writing it seems apparent that this idea will not be accepted. On the contrary, the Democratic plank when adopted seems likely to be in a spirit not of making the post war international organization a campaign issue but of preventing just that. To say this is not to suggest that the Democratic plank will be the same as the Republican one. It is merely to say that between the two planks there is likely to be no difference so specific and important as to set up a campaign issue.

Kept Out of Politics So Far

To keep the post war organization not only out of the presidential campaign but out of partisan politics altogether has been the steady purpose of those leaders of both parties who have most voice in the field of foreign relations. So successful have they been that the two official steps so far taken—official as contrasted with countless unofficial proposals—have had non-partisan support to a remarkable degree. A resolution passed by the House last summer calling for "participation by the United States" in "appropriate international machinery" for preserving peace, was passed by the extraordinary majority of 360 to 29. Similarly, the preliminary proposal which Secretary of State Cordell Hull negotiated with Great Britain and Russia was adopted in the Senate last November by 85 to 5.

These two official steps by the country's legislative body are paralleled by one of the two great parties, the Republican, in a resolution which party leaders adopted at Mackinac Island last September, and again in the party platform adopted last month. President Roosevelt, at press conferences and in official utterances, while of course not specifically agreeing with the Republican position, has been careful not to negate it. Apparently the Democrats in their platform are likely to act in the same non-partisan spirit of avoiding specific or important disagreement.

No Time for Controversy

That the international organization for preserving peace should not be an issue in the coming presidential campaign is peculiarly desirable, in view of something that is to take place in Washington next month. To Washington will come representatives of Britain, Russia and China, to discuss a tentative draft for an international organization, submitted by the American government. That this discussion should take place in the midst of controversy on the same subject, or details of it, between the two American political parties would be seriously disadvantageous.

That the American government has made a tentative draft, that it has invited representatives of the other great allies to discuss it, that the invitations have been accepted, and that the discussion will take place next month, is in fact all that the most zealous should demand. It is an immediate, concrete and strong action. Any so-called "strong" plank in the Democratic platform could not accomplish more and might be a monkey wrench thrown into the situation.

Simpson Sees Early Victory For Red Forces

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press War Analyst

"The Bug river sector of the Nazis' 'east wall' in Poland, from which the disastrous attack on Russia was launched, is fast disintegrating between the jaws of the vast Red army vise clamped upon it from north of Brest Litovsk to south of Lwow."

That north-south water hazard, cutting through central Poland for nearly 200 miles from the Carpathian foothills to the western extremity of the Pinsk marshes, is in deadly danger by Berlin's somber admission. Behind it lies no strong river barrier along which tottering German armies can rally until the Vistula is reached. And it, too, is vulnerable.

Hitler Asks "Faith"

Linked with broadening and deepening Allied footholds in Normandy and new Allied advances in Italy, the new Russian blow on the Bug lends credence to a Moscow-published cry from a captured German general that Hitler recently had told his commanders "the way to victory is through faith in Nazism."

"We know his words could not remedy conditions at the front where soldiers, tanks and planes are needed," the crest-fallen officer said.

That was being demonstrated anew in Italy, Normandy and most of all in Poland. Ukrainian armies already had turned the Bug line to the south and closed in on the Lwow bastion, matching the swift sweep of White Russia forces around the lines northern anchorage at Brest Litovsk. In between, on that 180 mile front, the Russians had crossed the Bug above and below Sokal and were menacing it east of Chelm along the direct road and rail route to Warsaw via Lublin.

Russian Speed Amazing

The power and speed of the advance of Ukrainian forces south of Brest Litovsk surpassed even the rapidity with which the Russians in the north had lunged beyond Brest Litovsk to cut the rail connection with Bialystok. The first break-through drove into the high ground past between the headwaters of the Polish Bug and that of the Dnestr, a sector guarded by the Lwow bastion. Fall of Lwow would invalidate the whole Bug line and compel a fast Nazi flight to the Vistula.

Meanwhile in Italy there are indications of a German lack of strength to hold off Allied investment of the Gothic line itself, keyed to the hills north of the Arno. With the big, deep water ports, Livorno and Ancona, now in Allied hands at both ends of the line, supply problems for Allied commanders will be simplified, while for the foe, particularly on the Adriatic flank, communications are becoming a desperate matter.

Local Man Serves On Army Hospital Ship

Ernest M. Duckworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Duckworth, 214 Cumberland street, is home on a thirty-day furlough after serving for six months with the medical unit of the army hospital ship Seminole.

The local man, a seaman second class in the merchant marine, has been assisting in moving wounded men from combat areas to base hospitals in Africa and England.

On the Anzio beachhead, "Ernie" said, the army evacuated casualties less than three hours after they were injured.

The local man has a red scar above his left eye which he said was caused by a flying piece of shrapnel during an air attack on his convoy.

While on the way back to America,

Duckworth said, his ship was stopped after the watch sighted what appeared to be an overturned lifeboat. No survivors were picked up, he added, as the object was only a dead whale.

Fairgo Betting And Attendance Marks May Fall

Second Wartime Meel Last Year Produced New Wagering Records

All indications point to new attendance and wagering records being established during the ten-day Cumberland Fair Association race meet opening at the local half-mile oval August 8.

President and General Manager Clifton W. White has been making an effort to bring only winning horses here, which should go far toward bringing out the crowds, and in addition, all motorists should have enough gasoline to get to the track several times during the two-week meet as new "A" coupons become valid August 9.

Last fall, the association's second wartime meeting produced a brand new set of wagering records and a new jockey record, the latter being set by Carson Kirk, of Silver Spring, Md.

On the final day in 1943, 6,000 fans wagered over $200,000 for the first time in Fairgo history and also broke the one-race mark of $26,367. The record finish sent the total betting to a new high—$1,389,763. The previous meet wagering record was $1,381,086 set in 1941.

Jockey Kirk scored a total of 167 points during the 1943 meeting to receive the diamond ring offered by Harvey's jewelry store to the leading rider. Kirk's total represented twenty-two firsts, thirteen seconds and eighteen thirds. Eddie Smith, of Washington, D. C., had the most winners previous to last year, scoring nineteen in 1935.

Claude Felner, Virginia horseman, was the leading trainer for the second straight year with eight winners. Dan Chamblin, also of Virginia, was second with six firsts.

Felner holds the trainers' record with nine winners in 1942. The biggest daily double payoff in Fairgo history was the $1,463.80 posted on August 15, 1942, when the 8-3 combination of S. M. Boyle's Grape Vine and P. W. Rudacille's Vera M. was victorious.

Braves Down Cubs By Score of 6-1

BOSTON, July 19 (AP)—Airtight pitching gave Nats' Andrews his tenth triumph of the season today and enabled the Boston Braves to shake the Chicago Cub jinx and defeat the visitors, 6 to 1, in the opener of a four-game series.

The lone Cub tally came in the sixth when Roy Hughes and Phil Cavaretta doubled in succession.

The Braves got off to a good start in the first, filling the bases with Max Macon's single, Tommy Holmes' double and an intentional walk to Ab Wright before Chet Ross singled across two runs.

Three more tallies in the sixth crossed the plate when Wright and Ross singled and Dee Phillips walked. After Bill Wietelmann forced Wright at the plate, Andrews scored Ross with a single and Connie Ryan's double chased over two more.

White Sox Break Jinx of Red Sox

CHICAGO, July 19 (AP)—After losing eleven straight games to the Boston Red Sox this year, the White Sox finally managed to squeeze out a victory in their twelfth meeting, 5 to 4.

The Chicagoans scored all their runs on four singles and three passes in the fifth inning after Joe Bowman held them hitless the first four frames.

Orval Grove struck out eight and walked none in pitching his season's eighth victory, but for the sixth straight start was unable to finish as the Red Sox threatened in the ninth with one away.

The Bostonians trailed 5-3 going into the inning, scored once on three singles and had the winning run on base. Joe Haynes, relieving, walked Joe Cronin, pinch hitting, to fill the bases, but shortstop Jim Webb started a game-ending double play on Lou Finney's grounder.

Tam O'Shanter Will Be Worth $47 per Stroke

Richest Tournament in Golf History Will Be Played August 24-27

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO, July 19 (AP)—George S. May today unmercifully and with malice aforethought turned the pressure on the pros competing in his Tam O'Shanter golf stampee Aug. 24-27 by announcing that the winner will be paid off at the rate of about $47.57 per stroke, side bets not counting.

This is enough moola to get even calm Joe McSpaden, the defending champion, and leading war bond earner of the season, a little jittery when he eyes a five-foot putt.

By reducing the first prize award to such minute terms as so much per stroke, Mr. Day is guilty of using both his sense and cents in making his tournament the greatest test of nerves in golf, as well as the richest. A total of $42,500 in bonds will be passed out as prize money.

Mr. May, who will charge spectators 83 cents (plus 17 cents tax) to watch golf's gold rush, will bestow upon the winner the respectable title of "world champion golfer of 1944." More important, he will give the guy $13,462.50 in war bonds. This is equivalent to $47.57 per stroke, assuming the 72-hole score is 283, five under par—which Mr. May gladly assumes.

Since the Tam course was lengthened and tightened up, the best aggregates have been 280 by Clay Heafner and Byron Nelson in 1942 and 282 by McSpaden and Buck White in 1943. Mr. May, who had a crew of workmen equipped with pneumatic drills punch holes in the frozen soil this winter to plant a couple thousand matured trees on the links, figures 283 will be the winning tally this time. He's willing to do some betting on it, given some odds, of course.

"If figure sky-high stakes will add pressure and keep the winning score up to 283," said golf's King Midas. "Pressure is a big factor, whether it is caused by money or the prestige of winning a big title. Starting in 1898, when the National Open first became a 72-hole tourney, the event has been played forty-two times and the all-time low score was 281 by Ralph Guldahl in 1937. In forty-four times the British Open has been played since 1892, the all-time low was 283 by Gene Sarazen in 1932. Henry Cotton in 1934 and Alf Perry in 1935.

"Pressure will keep the Tam winner this year to about 283."

HAGERSTOWN, Md., July 19 (AP)—G. C. Smith's Precious Years took the featured Smithsburg purse with even, the Hagerstown half mile track today, beating out Guerrilla, the heavily backed favorite, and Five O'Four. The latter horses finished second and third respectively.

Jockey G. Rose took Precious Years into the lead as the pack swung into the home stretch of the one mile and one-sixteenth gallop and staved off all challenges to the wire. He paid his backers $11.90.

The largest payoff of the meeting came in the first race when Sir Herbert, Jr., a rank outsider ridden by W. Kirk, breezed home to pay $131.30 to win.

Jockey W. Kirk also rode the winner in the second race when Ingertine paid $27.10. The daily double price was $238.90.

Family Gets Along Without Rationing

LOUISVILLE, Ky. July 19.—(AP)—The family of O. W. Smith, Louisville powder plant worker, holds no fear of rationing—they don't even own a ration book and have never applied for one.

"When things are rationed," Smith said, "it means that there are not enough things to go around. When rationing started we figured we could get along on things that were ration-free and leave the rationed stuff for people who needed it, especially the boys in service. We haven't suffered."

an avalanche of reactionary sentiment from which it cannot soon emerge."

Hails Commander-in-Chief

The keynote speaker did not once use the term "New Deal." Instead, he employed the terms the Roosevelt administration, the present administration, etc. He referred to President Roosevelt five times as commander-in-chief — three times in one paragraph.

Kerr, saying he was out to give a report of Democratic party stewardship, summed up:

"The Democratic party has provided its worthiness of the people's continued confidence."

He contended the Democrats have done most for the farmer, for labor, for the needy aged, for sound banking, for small business, for the family home owner, for soil conservation—and it is, he added, the party under which the United States has become "the greatest naval power on earth."

On the other hand, in a broad arraignment, Kerr accused the Republicans of:

Having no program, except to oppose; disunity among themselves; playing partisan politics with the danger of inflation; scrapping and sinking more of our fleet after the First World War than was destroyed by the Japanese at Pearl Harbor.

Tracing what he said were Republican failures under Presidents Coolidge and Hoover, recalling the depression, Kerr said these Republican administration years "created more suffering in this nation, destroyed more wealth, caused more poverty and left our nation in the most weakened and hopeless condition ever known."

Of "gains" under Roosevelt, Kerr said:

"If you truly favor private enterprise and equal opportunity to all, can you support the Republican party, under which these suffered most and came the nearest to destruction?"

Takes Fling at Old Guard

He said "the old guard is again in the saddle in the G. O. P. hoping to run rampant over liberalism in America in November as they did over their own ranks here three short weeks ago."

"Do you remember," he asked, "the twelve long years from 1920 through 1932 when America 'hardened' under Harding, 'cooled' under Coolidge and 'hungered' under Hoover?"

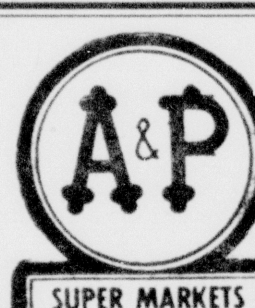

Unfurling the Democrats answer to the Republican "accusation on youth" campaign, Governor Kerr called a roll of five major American military

Hardy County 4-H Club Plans Made By County Agent

Will Open Tuesday at Camp Pinnacle; Classes, Games Scheduled

By MRS. R. E. FISHER

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., July 19.—The Hardy County 4-H camp will be held at Camp Pinnacle, July 24-29, County Agent S. L. Dodd, announced.

The camp, consisting of 201 acres affords an outstanding opportunity for farm boys and girls to take their limited vacations which cannot be spent elsewhere because of restrictions, Dodd pointed out.

Dodd, who has been in charge of the 4-H camp for many years, and announces the camp personnel will be composed of the Rev. H. P. Stelling, Miss Mary Baughman, Wardsville; Paul Myers, assistant district forest protector; James D. Anderson, Hardy county soil conservationist; Miss Ada Heishman, Lost River; Miss Pauline Hawse, Needmore; Mrs. Minnie Lee, Durbin; Miss Georgia Ely, Baker; Miss Ruth Kessel, graduate nurse; Miss Laura L. Caldwell, county club agent; Miss Mabel Teets and Mrs. Nellie Wilkins, camp cooks; Bud Boggs, Morgantown; Miss Cora Mowery, Clarksburg, camp director and life guard.

Classes will be offered in three groups and in addition there will be games, discussion groups, outdoor cooking, textile painting, rope making, handicraft and hat and hatter making will be some of the class subjects.

The morning classes will be an hour long and will be relieved by a mid-morning lunch.

Raymond Dispanet, county superintendent and supervisor of the project, has announced that an advisory council will be appointed to plan the general operational and maintenance administration, set hours, decide on fees to be charged and other problems of organization.

The council will be composed of citizens of the county with the county superintendent as chairman.

Discuss Library Plans
A group of interested citizens met at the library room Thursday night and made plans for the incorporation of the local library and the establishment of a county-wide plan of library service.

Miss Clara Johnson, executive secretary of the West Virginia Library Commission, met with the group and explained the work done by the commission. Established in 1942 and operating under a $10,000 annual appropriation from the state, the commission makes loans to the reading public. This is done by traveling library loans, inter-library loans, and individual loans. Any farm family can write them for the loan of books, she said.

The county-wide plan, which is considered most advisable for Hardy county needs, is one whereby a central library is established at a central spot and books are then sent out to different communities and groups. The local library has tried to do this in a small way but because all support was individual and insufficient, it has not been able to go far. With a public support from public funds, the library could do a great deal of good and cover the county, Miss Johnson said.

A petition is being prepared and will be presented to the people of Hardy county so that it may be voted on in the fall election.

A second meeting will be held in the library room Thursday evening and residents are requested to attend and discuss various phases of the plan.

Cumberland May Tap Utilities To Get Revenue

"Don't Be Surprised," Mayor Post Advises Three Local Companies

Mayor Thomas S. Post yesterday advised officials of three local public utilities "not to be surprised if the voters and taxpayers of Cumberland demand the city fathers and members of the state legislature to get some revenue from the utilities here."

In letters addressed to the Potomac Edison Company, Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company and the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, the mayor said:

"Indicative of the growing trend toward increased municipal taxation of utilities, the Memphis, Tennessee city council has passed a franchise ordinance requiring Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company to pay to the city a four per cent gross receipts tax for ten years and a five per cent tax for eight additional years. In addition to levying the gross receipts tax, the franchise calls for free telephone service of about $13,000 a year to the city government, and continuation of payment of about $33,000 a year in pole rentals in addition to the company's personal and real estate tax payments."

"Last year one of every ten cities of more than 10,000 in population tapped new revenue sources or increased existing levies."

"Springfield, Missouri, has made an offer to buy out the Springfield Gas and Electric Company."

"In Louisville, Kentucky, the city is negotiating with The Standard Gas and Electric Company for the purchase of the Louisville Gas and Electric plant."

"Don't be surprised if the voters and taxpayers of Cumberland demand the city fathers and members of the state legislature to get some revenue from the utilities here."

The mayor pointed out that Potomac Edison officials have advised him that Cumberland is charged a very low rate for its street lighting but upon comparing the rates with those of other cities, Post declared the local charges are not any lower than those elsewhere. He added that P. E. paid the city a total tax of $12,136.87 in 1943, which included a corporation assessment of $11,516.10 from the State Tax Commission and a non-operating assessment from the Allegheny county assessor (land only) of $620.77.

In mayor stated, in paying a corporation assessment and county assessment, the telephone company furnishes the city thirty free telephone calls annually, Post declared.

As for the amount of revenue the city is receiving from the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, the mayor stated he did not have such figures available.

"Cumberland must devise ways and means of obtaining additional revenues and since other cities are tapping public utilities it is likely that such action will be started here in the near future," the mayor concluded.

DRIVER OF WRECKED CAR CANNOT BE FOUND BY POLICE

Sherman W. House, McHenry, was fined $5 in police court yesterday morning on a charge of being drunk. He was arrested Tuesday evening at 11:05 o'clock by Officers J. Carl Stouffer and John W. Snyder, as he was walking away from a wrecked car on the top of Braddock road, police said.

The badly wrecked car apparently struck a guard rail and then careened across the road and stopped against the opposite bank, officers said.

When police arrived on the scene, following a warning that a car being driven in a reckless manner was approaching this spot on the Braddock road, House admitted he was the owner of the car although it was still registered in his sister's name.

House told police that he was not driving the car and that the driver was one of the two men who had fled from the scene. All four tires of the car were bent, police said, the headlights were damaged and one tire was flat.

Boyle Investigates Case of Man Held On Narcotic Charge

Terrence J. Boyle, county investigator is probing charges that a man listed as "Dr." Robert Charles Stewart, 39, of Pittsburgh, passed small checks in the city. The checks have as yet not passed through local banks, Boyle said.

The man is charged with violating the narcotic act by Connelleville police. They allege he had obtained narcotics in several hospitals in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Pfc. Douglas P. Kolb, 18, son of Raymond Kolb, attaché of the United States Embassy, London, England, and Mrs. Florence B. Kolb, 402 Columbia street, has been reported missing in action in Italy since June 4, according to a telegram received yesterday by his mother from the War Department.

Born in England, young Kolb returned to this country with his mother and three brothers at the outbreak of the Second World War. His father, a native of Cumberland, remained in London to carry on his duties at the embassy and returned to this country later to visit his family.

A grandson of Mrs. Annie M. Kolb, 402 Columbia street, and a nephew of Dr. Karl L. Kolb, 906 Bedford street, Charles L. Kolb, 1715 Bedford street, and Luther and Lester Kolb, of Plintstone, the youth was graduated from Allegheny high school in June 1943. He joined the army in September 1943 and was stationed at Camp Wheeler, Ga., before going overseas in February, 1944.

Lions Contribute $25 for Equipment For Prison Guards

The four orchardists represented at the meeting were the Golden Orchard Company, the Consolidated Orchard Company, Frank McFarland and W. C. Crabtree.

They will be expected to share equally with members of the fruit-growers association in event the seventy extra prisoners are made available for use in this country. McHenry said, adding that use of the prisoners would continue to be administered under the present set up. The camp is under the joint supervision of the state forestry department and the fruit-growers association.

Further negotiations with army officials in Washington, D. C., are being conducted with regard to providing the necessary added facilities at the camp, and the results of the discussions will be announced within a few days, McHenry said.

Chaplain Makes Plea for Donations for Men at Green Ridge Camp

A contribution of $25 was voted yesterday by the board of directors of the Cumberland Lions Club toward the purchase of athletic equipment for the soldier guards at the Green Ridge camp for German prisoners of war.

The money was donated by the club following a plea by the Rev. William von Spreckelsen, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran church, who is civilian chaplain for the camp.

In his request for aid, the chaplain stated that the American soldier guards, who came to Green Ridge from Fort George G. Meade, have only the bare necessities at camp and are in need of musical instruments, radio, victrola, tables and chairs, softballs and bats, ping pong sets and other equipment.

Those interested in making contributions or furnishing equipment of any kind for the guards are urged to contact the Rev. Mr. von Spreckelsen.

The principal speaker was Dr. Winter R. Frantz, county health officer, who gave a brief talk on the duties of the health department.

Guests of the club at yesterday's luncheon in the Central YMCA included Lee Mortfeldt, Lexington, Va., and Neil Sherman, Pittsburgh.

Lt. Hetzel K. Boden, 218 Oak street, has been captured by the Germans, according to yesterday's war casual report. Lt. Boden had been reported missing following a sortie June 10 over the Normandy invasion zone. He is the pilot of a Mustang fighter plane.

Lt. Boden's wife, Mrs. Joyce Lycoett Boden, lives at 109 Jackson street. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Boden, 218 Oak street.

Cpl. William G. Imier, Imiertown, Pa., was killed in New Guinea June 24, according to the casualty list. A graduate of Bedford high school in 1935, Cpl. Imier worked as a machinist with his father until he joined the army in 1941. He was assigned to overseas duty in September, 1943. Cpl. Imier's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Imier, live in Imiertown in Bedford county, Pa.

HEAVY DOWNPOUR RUNS GAUGE TO 1.3 INCHES, HIGHEST SINCE MAY 6

Rain came down by the bucket yesterday to give Cumberland its greatest amount of precipitation since the heavy rainfall of May 6, according to weather records at city hall.

Yesterday's downpour, which was at its heaviest about 5 p. m., causing many store and office workers to get a thorough soaking, was the heaviest here since June 23 when the gauge showed a half inch in fifteen minutes.

One and three-tenths inches of rain fell during yesterday's miniature deluge, and the water in the gutters was almost curb high on Baltimore street when the storm reached its height.

Use of Nazi Prisoners by Allegany Orchardists Discussed at Meeting

Growers Would Have To Pay Cost of Transporting Portable Barracks

Army authorities will provide additional portable barracks at the German prisoner of war camp in Green Ridge state forest if Allegany county orchardists agree to transport the barracks from Washington, D. C., to the camp, Ralph P. McHenry, county farm agent, announced yesterday following a meeting of representatives of four county orchardists in his office at 1:30 p. m.

Paul E. Nystrom, executive secretary of the state emergency farm labor committee, who also attended, said that the camp can now accommodate fifty more prisoners. The orchardists require the services of seventy German prisoners to help pick an estimated crop of a quarter million bushels of apples, representing half the expected crop in Allegany county, McHenry said.

As now set up, use of prisoners at the Green Ridge camp is limited solely to members of the Hancock Fruitgrowers Association, who first petitioned for use of the prisoners and who contributed a proportionate amount of money toward rehabilitation of the former Civilian Conservation Corps camp.

The four orchardists represented at the meeting were the Golden Orchard Company, the Consolidated Orchard Company, Frank McFarland and W. C. Crabtree.

They will be expected to share equally with members of the fruit-growers association in event the seventy extra prisoners are made available for use in this country. McHenry said, adding that use of the prisoners would continue to be administered under the present set up. The camp is under the joint supervision of the state forestry department and the fruit-growers association.

Further negotiations with army officials in Washington, D. C., are being conducted with regard to providing the necessary added facilities at the camp, and the results of the discussions will be announced within a few days, McHenry said.

Red Cross Sends Shipment of War Parcels to Prisoners

The largest shipment of American Red Cross prisoners of war parcels yet made in the present war is en route to Marseilles, France, aboard the sister ships Transvancore and Mangalore, which sailed from Philadelphia, Mrs. Louise Dean, executive secretary of the local Red Cross chapter, announced yesterday.

Largest and fastest of the Red Cross fleet, the ship carries a combined cargo of 1,320,000 standard food parcels and a considerable amount of clothing for American and Allied prisoners of war in Europe, Mrs. Dean said. The ships, recently built in Sweden, fly the Swedish flag and are manned by Swedish crews. They are under charter to the International Committee of the Red Cross at Geneva.

A memorial service will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the First Brethren church, corner of Fourth and Seymour streets, for Pfc. Milton J. Crowe, who was reported killed in action in France, June 10, in the battle of Normandy.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gurney C. Crowe, 108 Claybourne street, and the husband of Dorothy Anne Knippenberg Crowe, 705 Princeton street.

His mother received a telegram from the War department July 7 announcing his death.

Crowe was a former Fort Hill high school student and was a member of the band at that school when it was first organized.

He left Cumberland with old Company G in February 1941 and landed in England in October, 1942.

Telephone Books Cut in Number To Save Paper

9,800 Copies of New Directory Are Now in Hands of Subscribers

Telephone subscribers in Cumberland have just received copies of their Summer-Fall directory, according to a statement made by Joseph H. Cromwell, manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City here. He reports that more than 9,800 copies of this new directory have been mailed to subscribers here.

The directory is an essential tool for making today's telephone service work both smoothly and efficiently. Users of the telephone will find a great variety of information in the directory — how to make emergency calls, how to get repair service, space for important telephone numbers, helpful guides in the proper use of the telephone, how to use the dial telephone and information on out-of-town calls.

Efforts are being made to reduce the number of telephone directories delivered this season, Cromwell said, in order to conserve paper. Persons having two or more telephones have been asked to limit as far as possible their requests for additional directories, due to the government's paper conservation program. Telephone numbers are also urged to take strong care of their directories and when moving from one location to another to take their directories with them.

As many telephone numbers have been changed since the last directory was issued, telephone users are asked to consult the new directory before making calls. In this connection Cromwell pointed out that more than 100,000 calls to "information" are for numbers already listed in the directory. If the new telephone directory were checked before calling "information," these unnecessary calls would be eliminated and the time of the "information" operators could be devoted to handling more essential calls. Personal telephone number books should also be checked with the new directory and corrections made where numbers have been changed.

Use of party-line service by telephone subscribers is definitely aided by the war effort, since the scarcity of critical materials prevents the telephone system from being enlarged, he said, adding it is more important than ever that neighbors sharing the same line be considerate of one another. Good telephone neighbors make calls as brief as possible, do not call several numbers in succession, avoid interruption conversations, answer their telephone promptly and hang up the receiver carefully; if every one on the line co-operates, then all will receive good party-line service, he said.

Cpl. Lloyd Lanich Writes His Parents Of Experiences

Describes France and Some of the Citizens He Has Met There

France is "wonderful — very green and beautiful, the villages or rather what is left of them, are quaint and just exactly what I hoped to find," Cpl. Lloyd Lanich recently wrote his parents, Dr. and Mrs. L. Jackson Lanich, 108 Virginia avenue. In discussing the French people he wrote, that they "are very, very friendly. They stand along the roads and throw rocks and wave at us as we pass and ask for cigarettes and candy."

Cpl. Lanich also reported that he had made a number of friends in a nearby village; one is a woman who does his laundry and mending and the other the former postmaster and his wife, whom he has visited a number of times. "They haven't much food, of course, but plenty of cider," he writes, and "altogether my association with these people has been the most interesting thing that has happened to me in Europe."

He also described going with two companions on a long trip looking for eggs and souvenirs. "We found both in abundance," he reported and continued that he was hoarding a dozen eggs to consume within the next week or so. Eggs, he said, are a real luxury, and they must have visited twenty farms to get the six dozen eggs. The trip also gave them a feeling that they knew half of the peasants in France now. They are, he said, very obliging and polite, very appreciative when they were overpaid and loaded with soap, cigarettes and candy. He concluded with the remark that "they actually seem glad that they have been 'liberated.'"

Cpl. Lanich a graduate of Fort Hill high school, and a member of the United States Army Reserves at Washington and Lee university, Lexington, Va., reported for active duty, February 17, 1943. He trained at New Cumberland, Pa., and St. Petersburg, Fla., before being transferred to the air intelligence at Bowling field, Washington, D. C., and later to Richmond, Va., before going to Dover, Del. for overseas training. He returned to Richmond for a short time before sailing December 1943 for England.

George E. Baughman, pastor of First Methodist church. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Elsie Pool and Mrs. Bessie Perdew, Artemus, and three brothers, William, Lonnie and Erwin, Monessen, Pa.

Postal Receipts Show an Increase

The large number of local men and women in the armed forces and the migration of war workers to communities away from Cumberland account for the fact that postal receipts for the first six months of 1944 are a little over $11,000 more than receipts for the same period last year, postal officials said yesterday.

Three years ago, it was pointed out, less than 100 air mail stamps a day were sold at the local post office, whereas now approximately 2,000 air mail stamps a day are being sold. Officials attributed most of these sales to the large amount of mail being dispatched overseas.

Because of the increased rates on the sending of money orders, which went into effect recently, not many money orders are being handled now as three months ago and many persons are sending money through banks which have a lesser fee, officials explained.
